Hope is a Thing With Feathers
Emily Dickinson

Hope is a thing with feathers
That perches in the soul
And sings a tune without words
And never stops at all

And sweetest, in the gale, is heard
And sore must be the storm
That could abash the little bird
That keeps so many warm.

I've heard it in the chilliest land
And on the strangest Sea
Yet, never, in extremity
It ask a crumb of me.

Allen's Word

Christmas break has come, and it shall be glorious. Sure, I'll have to provoke my annual argument with my mother by stating that she doesn't have to play "Let It Snow" a trillion times in a row just because it is the Christmas season. However, I am still quite happy I will be out of school.

School is by no means a terrible place to be. I'm sure there are worse places, like the middle of an erupting volcano.

A break is still nice to have, because school forces you into a very monotonous routine. You come to school and see the same people and go to the same classes every single day. I would have to say the people bother me more than the classes. Books don't annoy me, people do. Teenagers are a naturally loud bunch. They become even louder by the hundreds.

Understand, I'm not being mean when I say people annoy me. I am simply stating that I'm not a very social person and school is a social event every single day. Surely, I am not the only person who grows tired of listening to teenage arguments and pointless conversations.

Basically, you people are good but in small doses. We need these breaks so we all can prepare ourselves to deal with each other for another semester. With that said, have a merry Christmas!

Famous Quotes

"People are always asking me what my lyrics mean. Well, I say what any decent poet would say if you dared ask him to analyse his work: if you see it, darling, then it's there."

- Freddie Mercury
